Keeping expatriates happy should not be left to chance

Expatriates may have difficulty in finding accommodation because their expectations do not correspond to the reality of the market.

One of the first and most important tasks of our consultants is to get clients to adjust their expectations.

Determining the personal needs of expatriates and their families is not an easy task.

Our consultants' experience and intuitive understanding enables them to assess such needs correctly.

Finding the right school is often difficult because there is no overview of all the possibilities.

Our website provides a comprehensive overview of almost all the schools available.

Culture shock usually sets in immediately upon arrival.

Give your future employees the opportunity to participate in our cross-cultural training.

Owing to their limited availability, finding appropriate child-care facilities can be quite a challenge.

Our consultants know how to use all the options.

Expatriates like to enjoy cultural events, play sports and are open to a new social environment.

We know what is available and our website provides all the relevant information about these activities.
